ETHNICITY: BURMESE – Sub-Divisions: Burmese, Karen, Karenni
Additional Resources for Burmese Cultures:
Fadiman, A. (1997) The spirit catches you and you fall down. New York: Farrar, Straus &amp; Giroux
Religions	General Information
Christian, Muslim, Buddhists, Animists	Throughout Burma, rice is central to daily existence and is regarded as virtually synonymous with life itself. It is eaten at all meals. There are 135 different ethnic groups from Burma broken down into nine main groups: Burma, Karen, Mon, Shan, Chin, Rohingya, Arakhan, Kachin, and Karenni. Minority groups will not normally identify themselves as being Burmese, they generally hold a strong identity of their own ethnic group. Do not call a Karenni a Burmese.
	Burmese Cultures Medical Information	Yes- No
	Common refugees medical issues from Burmese cultures: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>◦ Malnutrition – lack of access to iron-rich foods or knowledge of what these are</li> <li>◦ Anemia</li> <li>◦ Parasites</li> <li>◦ Oral Health Deficiencies</li> <li>◦ Mental Health Concerns</li> <li>◦ Tuberculosis and Infectious Diseases</li> </ul> Some of Asian cultures have been shown to have drug metabolism variations from the normal responses especially with psychotropic drugs, increased sensitivity to the sedative effects of some drugs, and to require lower doses of neuroleptics.	Yes = Ho de No = Ma ho bu
	Burma - Burmese Key information
Marriage is a strongly respected institution. Arranged marriages are still practiced to some degree. The head holds special honor and must not be touched. Shaking hands is not usual but when shaking hands, the right hand is supported by the left, as a sign of special respect. Due to the severely inadequate medical systems in Burma, many folks rely on home remedies. Traditional beliefs normally still prevail, with malicious spirits being blamed for an illness and a shaman sought for treatment.

CULTURAL INFORMATION

	Burma - Karenni Key information	Yes- No Yes = Yi No = Ani
	The Karenni are a resilient, gracious people with a great sense of humor. They have a very strong work ethic, and don't complain. They live out of a basic belief that life is difficult, so you do what you have to do in order to survive. If faced with a difficult task, they might respond with "a lay hey oh to' (it doesn't matter/ no problem). They demonstrate great dignity in providing for themselves and helping their fellow Karenni. They have a very strong commitment to their own country, language and culture. Unfortunately, it is very difficult for them to ask for help, even if they desperately need it. As you get to know the Karenni, ask them to tell you their stories. Do not call a Karenni a Burmese.
	Burma - Karen Key information	Yes- No Yes = May No = Her er
	Rice is the key to a decent Karen day. Karen like white rice, not the brown unhusked variety. Karen are familiar with potatoes, which are boiled in soups or fried. Meats such as chicken, pork, or beef are popular, as are eggs. Canned fish is familiar and well liked. The Karen are a reticent, even shy people, and many will be surprised and perhaps worried by American directness of speech, voice levels, and body language. With the Karen, a quiet, low-key style of communication works best, peppered with lots of reassuring and friendly smiles. When a Karen folds his arms in front of him while talking to you, it is a sign of respect, not aggression or defensiveness. Using both hands to give and receive an object is a sign of respect, particularly with older people. Karen like to be very self-reliant and to pursue an independent lifestyle within their own culturally close-knit communities. If a Karen is offered something, he or she may be reluctant to take it, even if the item is needed. Karen do not like to boast or put themselves forward. They also do not like to complain. In Karen families, males are generally the heads of household. Elders are given the greatest respect. Karen are very loving yet quite strict with children, and many parents use their hand or a rod to discipline a child. Many Karen are addicted to the simple pleasure of chewing betel nut, a mildly stimulating mixture of areca nut, lime, and leaf. So fond of this ancient Asian cultural practice are most older Karen that one elderly refugee said he would not go to the United States if he could not find betel there. Another elderly man had already begun to try to wean himself off betel by chewing melon seeds instead. Chewing gum might also work as a (pale) substitute. Dental caries are very common due to lack of access to dental care and common habit of chewing betel nut. Do not call a Karen a Burmese.

ETHNICITY: CONGOLESE
Additional Resources for Congolese Cultures:
Religions	General Information	Yes- No
50% Roman Catholic, 7% other Christian but also includes Muslims, followers of traditional African beliefs, and Kambuangists—members of a native Congolese Christian sect.	The Democratic Republic of the Congo is one of the world's poorest countries, yet contains an abundance of natural resources. Coffee beans, potatoes, tomatoes, yams, and leeks are among the many crops that grow well here. It is also rich in a wide variety of jewels and minerals. With a population of roughly 70 million people, the DRC is ethnically diverse, with about 250 ethnic groups speaking about 700 different languages and dialects. It is important to note that the Congo is a separate entity than the DRC , and the DRC speaks more French than the adjacent Congo.	Yes = ndiyo No = hakuna  (Swahili)
	Congolese Culture Medical Information
	The five most common medical conditions among refugees are: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Tuberculosis</li> <li>• Hypertension</li> <li>• HIV</li> <li>• Vision problems</li> <li>• Heart disease.</li> </ul> Less serious chronic conditions, such as arthritis and back problems, may be common and underreported among a population that is accustomed to the physical hardships of daily life. Refugee children have to be examined for malnutrition and its long-term ramifications on growth and development.
The Congo is immersed in a warlike state where sexual violence is commonly used as a tactic of war, subjecting women to rape, mutilation, and public humiliation. Sexual violence against women and girls has caused international outrage since 1996, with little having been done about it since. Sexual and gender-based violence [SGBV] elicits physical and emotional complications. Pneumococcal disease (causing pneumonia meningitis and sepsis) is the second leading cause of child death under the age of 5. It is second only to malaria. In 2011 a vaccine was introduced in Kinshasa, Congo's capital as well as two of Congo's 11 provinces. In addition, malnutrition affects 3 out of every 10 children.

ETHNICITY: ETHIOPIA, AFRICA
Additional Resources for Ethiopian Culture:
Religions	General Information	Yes- No
Orthodox Christianity (54%) and Islam (33%) make up the major religions.	Ethiopia is ethnically diverse with 70 to 80 languages belonging to four major language families—Semitic, Cushitic, Omotic, and Nilo-Saharan It is the source of one of the largest refugee groups in the world, though compared to other immigrant groups in the United States the Ethiopian community is relatively new and small. Two thirds of the population speaks Oromo, Amharic, and Tigrinya	Yes = Awo No = No  (Amharic)
	Ethiopian Medical Information
	To Ethiopians, health is a state of equilibrium within the body and the outside. It is very important to understand either the reluctance to use Western medicine, or the propensity to use traditional healing from the self-diagnosed prognosis from the Ethiopian perspective.
	Ethiopian Key Information
Excess heat, cold, food, drink, worms, and sun can disrupt this equilibrium. The sun is thought to be frequently involved in causing disease. In Ethiopia most will first seek holy water or treatment from a traditional healer before considering western medicine. The main health concerns in Ethiopia include maternal mortality, malaria, tuberculosis and HIV/AIDS compounded by acute malnutrition and lack of access to clean water and sanitation. Access to health-care services is very difficult. Polio and measles are a health issue and with the average distance of any given citizen to a health center being greater than 10 Km, vaccinations are not easily accessible. Often times Ethiopians, will self-diagnose themselves as 'malarial' when in fact they are not, treating themselves as such, or relying on traditional medicines rather than Western medicines which again are frustratingly inconvenient. Cultural knowledge is useful in choosing therapy. It seems that Ethiopians would prefer a tuberculosis regimen that includes injections over tablets.

	becoming more common in the West <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• In Arab countries, patients are told only the good news about their disease by doctors—serious problems are reported to a selected family member</li> <li>• Arab patients expect relief from pain and to receive medication on the first visit</li> <li>• Nurses are seen as helpers, not health care professionals, and their suggestions or advice are not always taken seriously</li> <li>• During Ramadan conservative Muslims may refuse medications during daylight hours</li> <li>• Say “I’ll try”, rather than saying something that may be interpreted as a promise</li> <li>• Some Iraqi men may interpret friendliness in an American woman as a sign of romantic or sexual interest</li> </ul>
Iraqi Key Information
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Visitors are treated like kings; food is lavished upon them.</li> <li>• Popular main courses—kebabs, quzi (roasted and stuffed lamb), and kubba (minced meat with raisins, nuts, and spices) Popular desserts—Turkish delight, rice pudding, baklava</li> <li>• Tea and coffee are the most widely consumed drinks. Alcohol is forbidden for Muslims.</li> <li>• Typical spices include saffron and mint. Muslims must adhere to halal laws.</li> <li>• UNHCR reports that some Iraqi women and children are partaking in prostitution and/or being trafficked</li> </ul>
ETHNICITY: LATINO
Additional Resources for Latino Culture:
Religions	General Information	Yes- No
Catholic	Respect is very important in Latin culture. The way in which a doctor or providers greet and address a Latino patient may convey respect or disrespect to the patient. Although Mexican families tend to be patriarchal, it is the mother who is in charge of health care.	Yes = Si No = No (Spanish)

CULTURAL INFORMATION

	Latino Medical Information
	Many Latino cultures use traditional home remedies when ailing their sick. Exposure to political violence is the most identified cause of chronic pain, lower perceptions of general health Stressful situations and conditions for Latino refugees are a primary cause for mental health problems. Diabetes is twice as prevalent among Hispanics as among the majority population. Hypertension is common in Hispanic populations. Overweight and obesity are common in some Hispanic groups. The incidence of cervical cancer in Hispanic women is double that of non-Hispanic European American women. Although Hispanics have a lower incidence of breast, oral cavity, colorectal, and urinary bladder cancers, their mortality from these is similar to that of the majority population.
	Latino Key Information
Studies indicate that Hispanics expect a caregiver to show warmth to a patient and family members and should not be strictly business. A physician should be attentive, take their time, show respect, and if possible communicate in Spanish. Home remedies are passed on from mother to daughter. When a family member is sick, it is a family crisis and often there will be many people to whom charge is given for health care. For more difficult and chronic treatments, it is often important to have the physician explain the disease process. Mexicans are often very religious with the most common religion being Catholicism.

CULTURAL INFORMATION

ETHNICITY: SAUDI ARABIA
Additional Resources for Saudi Culture:
Religions	General Information	Yes- No
Islam	Saudis take their responsibilities to their family quite seriously. Families tend to be large and the extended family is quite close. Saudis tend to stand close when conversing with a practitioner on anyone else due to not requiring much personal space.	Yes = Naam No = La
Saudi Medical Information

Saudi Key Information
Arabic is the official language of Saudi Arabia, but English is widely spoken. Among the non-Saudi population, many people speak Urdu, the official language of Pakistan, and other Asian languages such as Farsi and Turkish. Islam is practised by all Saudis and governs their personal, political, economic and legal lives. Islam was born in Saudi Arabia and thus is visited by millions of Muslims every year. One interesting fact about Saudi Arabia is that Saudis do not require as much personal space as most western cultures. As such, they will stand close to you while conversing and you may feel as if your personal space has been violated, though it is customary to them.
